SUMMARY DESCRIPTION

1502-1508 Thames Street is a brick warehouse facility on the north side of Thames Street (photo 1) between Caroline Street on the west and Bond Street on the east. It is not included within the boundaries of the Fell's Point National Register Historic District. The property consists of the shells of two 3-story rowhouses (1502-1504 Thames Street) and a T-shaped, two story tall warehouse (1506-1508). The property has undergone many changes since the land was first developed in the early 19th century, the most recent of which occurred in the 1950's.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

The structure at 1502-1508 Thames Street consists of a two story tall warehouse (1506-1508 Thames Street) which extends northwest to Caroline Street and was constructed in the 1950's and two much altered (1950's and probably earlier) rowhouses (photo 1). The properties were interconnected in the mid-20th century when, it is believed, the south facade was faced with ironspot brick.

The "rowhouses" (1502-1504) are two bays wide, three stories tall, and have a common gable roof. Most of the first floor elevation of 1502 is taken up with a large opening under a steel lintel now covered with plywood. A door exists in the eastern bay of 1504 next to a window filled with glass block. The remaining windows indicate the presence, originally, of six over six sash.

At the party wall on the sidewalk may be found a pair of iron doors covering the access to the basement. Access is also gained from the interior of the building at the original rear (north) wall of the rowhouses through a wide opening at ground level. The basement, a common space under both 1502 and 1504, has a low ceiling (6' approx.) and a cement floor. A stone foundation wall exists (photo 15) in 1504; no evidence of stone walls is visible in 1502.

1502-1504 Thames Street were originally two rooms deep. In the 1950's the rowhouses were encircled by the garage to the east (1506 and 1508) and were interconnected. No remnant of the 19th c. domestic detailing remains.

Major alterations occurred in the mid-20th century including the refacing of the south wall with ironspot brick, the addition of 4' wide openings on the first and second floor of 1504 from the warehouse, and the addition of openings of similar width in the party wall with 1502. The change to the warehouse space is indicated by the north-south orientation of the second floor boards in contrast to the east-west orientation on the third floor.

The first floor of 1504 was partitioned to create three bathrooms (photo 3), while the first floor of 1502 (photos 6 and 7) consists of two rooms sheathed in fiber board on the walls and ceiling most recently used as an employee lounge. The south wall of 1504 consists of exposed cement block with a glass block window

SIGNIFICANCE

The substantial alterations of 1502-1508 Thames Street have eliminated the historic integrity required for a building to meet the National Register Criteria for Evaluation. the 18th and early 19th century development of the property has been either totally eliminated at 1506-1508 Thames Street which is a garage/warehouse or has been drastically altered at 1502-1504 Thames Street which (c. 1940) became an adjunct facility for the garage. The common ironspot brick facade was probably added after 1940 when the properties were consolidated under one ownership.

The purpose of this essay is to summarize the history of the property. (NOTE: The Maryland Historical Trust has all research notes upon which this essay is based.)

HISTORY AND SUPPORT

The property now known as 1502-1508 Thames Street was originally Lot 22 in Fell's Addition to Baltimore. In 1769 Ann Fell leased the 60 foot wide lot on Thames Street to John Bond. Bond conveyed the lease in 1772 to James Anderson. Anderson then leased the eastern half (1506-1508) to Joseph Beaumont and the western half (1502-1504) to William Johnson, sailmaker. The boundary description in Johnson's deed (Baltimore City Deeds WG #B/140) mentions "... were a certain Adam Linsey [sic] now lives. ..." indicating a presence of a dwelling on Johnson's half. The 1796 City Directory lists William Johnson, sailmaker, as living on Thames Street. The 1798 Federal Direct Tax Assessment indicates that William Johnson owned a two story brick house in Fell's Point (Depford Hundred) occupied by a Captain Nelson. Unfortunately neither Adam Linsey or Joseph Beaumont appear in the Assessment.

The next reference to a building is a 1847 deed (AWB #390/444) which describes a 31 foot lot fronting on Thames Street (1502-1504) "... with improvements being a two story brick house. ..." This could have been the structure referred to in the 1798 Assessment. After 1856 the lot (1502-1504) was divided in half and had separate owners until 1933 when the four addresses were consolidated by one owner.

DESCRIPTION

Continuation sheet p. 1

(photos 4 and 5). The second and third floors (except for the second floor of 1502) of both buildings consist of one room per building with a clear span, probably used for storage (photo 14). The second floor of 1502 is divided into two rooms (photos 10 and 11). In the center of the third floor of 1504 is a hole in the floor providing access to the second floor (photo 13). A one run, narrow stair at the northern end of the east and west walls of 1502 and 1504 connects the floors. Two six over six sash remain on the south wall of 1502 (photo 13). The roof is visibly sagging, indicating a very poor structural condition.

A two story tall warehouse exists to the east (1506 and 1508). Its ironspot brick facade contains a metal garage door flanked by two high, glass block windows. Under the eastern window is a pedestrian door. On the inside, the building consists of a T-shaped, two story space (photo 16) stretching northwest 190' to Caroline Street. The storage space extends west behind 1502 and 1504 and to the east behind 1510 Thames Street. Brick, two story high walls exist at the approximate location of the former property, or lot, boundaries. This creates four warehouse/storage spaces with no interior columns. The floor is concrete throughout. Wide openings connect the spaces. The space behind (north) of 1510 Thames Street had been partitioned to create a refrigeration room at the north end. A Howe vehicular scale of mid-20th century date exists at the Thames Street entrance.

The west wall of the building along Caroline Street which attained its present appearance in the mid-20th century is brick, painted white, two stories high, and in three sections. The northern section (rear of 1510 Thames Street) has a door at the south end with a bricked-up door above, and three bricked-up windows on the second floor to the north. The central section (behind 1506 and 1508) has a window and a two story wooden door hung from a metal beam. The southern section (behind 1504 and 1502) has a two story wooden door hung from a metal beam at the northern end and bricked-up fenestration of a two story, three bay building. When the buildings were consolidated and interconnected in the mid-20th century, the Caroline Street elevation was constructed incorporating parts of extant brick walls.

The northern wall at the apex of the triangle of the building is narrow and contains no fenestration. The eastern wall is also blank and extends south to the northeast corner of 1510 Thames Street.

1502-1508 Thames Street, Baltimore City

#8 Statement of Significance

continuation sheet 1

The 19th century history of the lot is best documented by the Assessors' Field Books and the Sandborn maps. In 1866, 1502 Thames Street was a three story brick house owned by William Freeman, a block maker who operated out of the building. Ten years later David Perry was the owner and had a liquor and confectionary business in the building. In 1898 the Assessors list the building as being two and one half stories tall, not three, used as a grocery store by Celia Nelson, the owner. By 1902 (Sandborn map) the building was again three stories used as a boarding house. The use returned to a store in 1917.

In 1866, 1504 Thames Street was a three story brick house leased by W. Frank Roby & Co. who sold rope and iron. Ten years later the tenant Samuel Boone was a "trunk dealer." The 1898 Assessment describes the building as a two and one half story brick building, identical to the description of 1502 indicating a possible mistake by the assessor. One change did occur in 1898: the addition of a one story brick back building. (Or, 1 S. B. B. B., in the Assessors' short hand.) John and Frederika Jewer used the building as their residence from 1889 until 1915. The 1917 Sandborn Atlas indicates that the building was returned to retail use.

The garage at 1506-1508 Thames Street was constructed in the 1940's when the four lots were consolidated. This area is the western section of Fell's Point Lot 22 leased to Joseph Beaumont. No early records have been uncovered as to the structures on the property. By the mid-19th century 1506 Thames Street was a two story brick house with a one story frame kitchen used as a liquor store. The 1876 assessment describes a three story brick house valued at roughly four times the two story house indicating either new construction or major alteration. ($563 in 1866 and $2250 in 1876) Before 1898 a two story brick back building was added. The property retained this configuration and residential use through the mid-20th century.

Its neighbor to the east 1508 Thames Street was a three story brick house in 1866 with a brick liquor store on the rear of the lot on Caroline Street. By 1876 a bar was operating on the premises probably in the Thames Street building as the brick store on Caroline Street is not mentioned. Before 1898 a brick back building was added (two stories high) and the use changed to a store. The 1902 Sandborn atlas shows a dwelling which had been demolished for a brick warehouse by 1917. That warehouse covered the entire lot back to Caroline Street.
